M'CLELLAN, FORD, GAYNOR.

MAY BE A THREE-CORNERED FIGHT FOR THE MAYORALTY.

out the Chief Interest of the Politicians Now Is in the Action of County Conventions Regarding Jerome-His Chances as an Independent Slight. Politicians, Republicans and Democrats, ondered yesterday William Travers Jeome's authoritative statement from Lakeile Saturday night, in which he said: "I rill not under any circumstances be a andidate for the office of Mayor at the orthcoming election." Some of the aleged wise ones then declared that it looked them as if the three candidates for Mayor

George Brinton McClellan-Tammany. Ex-Senator John Ford-Republican. William J. Gaynor-Hearst.

There is no doubt, of course, about Mayor McClellan's nomination, but some said that a certain amount of maneuvering and puble shuffling will have to be gone through order to convince New Yorkers that Mr. ford and Justice Gaynor come out of the box only in response to volcanic outbursts for municipal ownership of public utilties; and so forth and so forth.

McClellan has at his back the issue of good government, which his political adersaries have temporarily abandoned for the platform of the Populists and Socialists. McCleilan, in other words, confronts his opponents with the most excellent administration of the city's affairs in twenty years, and the fact that under his direction the city is building its own gas plant.

Mr. Ford relies for support upon his advocacy of the original State Franchise Tax law, which was so crude and ineffective that Theodore Roosevelt, Governor at that time; was perforce compelled to call an extraordinary session of the Legislature and substitute amendments of his own before the law could be made constitutional. How Gov. Roosevelt thought it advisable to conciliate Mr. Ford and Abe. Gruber, Mr. Ford's Senatorial sponsor at the time, in order to secure Mr. Ford's vote (which was absolutely necessary) to the amendments which made the law constitutional is another story. That's in the Justice Gaynor's friends say that he is municipal ownership man from conviction. They also say that he will not accept the Hearst nomination for Mayor if Mr. Jerome is not on the ticket with him for District Attorney.

What will the Republican county and the Tammany county conventions do about Mr. Jerome for District Attorney? That was the next question put by the politicians yesterday. The Tammany county convenion is to be held first, on Oct. 12. The Republican convention is to be held the next evening, Oct. 13. Mr. Jerome, running as an independent candidate for District Attorney, cannot, in the opinion of the politicians who talked yesterday, come within gunshot of election.

The most liberal estimate was that Mr. Jerome on an independent ticket would get about 20,000 votes. In other words, It was insisted, Mr. Jerome must be indorsed by Tammany or by the Republicans and the Citizens' Union, acting jointly with other fusion organizations, in order to be elected. That is the cold mathematical presentation of the situation as told by organization men.

Leader Murphy and Mayor McClellan and their advisers, together with the executive committee, will determine the action of Tammany on the matter. Mr. Odell and Mr. Cutting will decide for the fusionists.

Most problems to be solved, if any really exist, between now and county convention time will, in the judgment of keen politicians yesterday, be subordinated to the action of the respective county conventions concerning an indorsement of Mr.

THE AURIESVILLE PILGRIMAGE. Solemn Services at the Shrine of Our Lady of Martyrs-5.000 Attend. AURIESVILLE, N. Y., Sept. 3 .- Notwithstanding an all night rain and frequent showers to-day, more than 5,000 pilgrims visited the shrine of Our Lady of Martyrs here and took part in the religious exercises, which were concluded late this afternoon. MINSTREL HAVERLY FINED. Pays $10 for Being Too Humorous in Mock's Restaurant.

Burt Haverly, the minstrel, Revelly McCutcheon, a broker of 110 West Forty-fourth street and J J. McGirr, also a broker, of 2688 Broadway, were arraigned in the West Side court yesterday on complaint of Harry Mock, proprietor of Mock's restaurant in Forty-second street, near Broadway, who charged the three with acting in a disorderly manner in his place of business. Policeman Kreuzer of the West Forty-seventh street station, who made the arrest, charged Haverly and McCutcheon with assault. At the time of the arrest Haverly gave his name as Edwin Stuart and was so named in the papers handed to Magistrate Moss. Mr. Mock said that Haverly had been the cause of all the trouble, raising a row in the barroom and refusing to leave when asked to do so. Haverly denied it. "Your Honor," he said, "this is all a mistake. I did not create any disturbance. I only told a funny story and the waiters, bartender and cashier made so much noise laughing at it that it set the place in an uproar. I couldn't help it if they wanted to laugh. When Magistrate Moss was informed of Haverly's identity he asked him why Policeman Kreuzer said that when he was called in by Mr. Mock and went to arrest the defendants, Haverly and McCutcheon assaulted him, one holding him by the neck while the other tried to hit him with a selzer bottle. He hadn't any marks on him, however, and the Magistrate said he would not entertain the charge. Haverly strongly protested against his treatment, saying that he had spent a night in a cell on a most unjust charge. Magistrate Moss fined the three men $10 each. They were released after paying their fines.

POLISH SINGERS MEET.

Fifteenth Annual Convention Begun With a Talk by Fornes and a Concert.

The fifteenth annual convention of the National Association of Polish Singers began last night in Terrace Garden. About 600 members were there and most of them were accompanied by women relatives. The principal societies represented are the Harmonia of New York, Lutnia of Brooklyn, Bracia de Reszke (named for the Polish opera singers) of Nanticoke, Pa.; Spiewackie of Buffalo and Dzwon of Bay City, Mich.

Acting Mayor Fornes welcomed the delegates and then there was a concert. The united Polish chorus of 500 voices, under the direction of Seweryn Kujawski, sang Glory, Glory, Glory." Miss Klementyna Malek of Milwakuee sang Linke's "Robakszi Swietojanskie," the literal translation of which is "The Bugs of St. John," a title not so startling when it is known that that is the name by which fireflies are called in Poland.

Chopin's Funeral March was sung impressively by the chorus of Bracia de Reszke, and in marked contrast the Buffalonians pressively by the chorus of Bracia de Reszike, and in marked contrast the Buffalonians gave Gounod's anvil chorus. Mme. Rosa Riolbasa-Kwasigroch of Chicago was heard in two fine numbers, the Polonaise from "Mignon" and Moniuszko's "Rustle in the Pines." Mr. Kuczynski of New York, a barytone, sang the aria from "The Jewess," by Halevy. Otto de Scheda of Springfield, Mass., a celebrated violinist, played the "Bouquet of Polish Songs," Another patriotic number was "The Songs of Our Country," sung by the Brooklyn Lutnia. The united men's chorus closed the concert with "In Lithuania."

The convention will get down to business this morning and keep at it for three days, singing occasionally to vary the monotony. There will be a banquet to-night, with a singing contest for prizes. Some of the most prominent Poles in America are among the delegates. J. L. Strus, editor of the Polish Weekly, is chairman of the reception and press committee.

According to the story she told Magistrate Moss in the West Side court yesterday morning, she owes her life to the dog, which saved her from her husband, August Brunner.

The young couple have been married fourteen months and have one child, a little girl, which the mother placed in a charitable institution several weeks ago. Brunner a month ago enlisted in the army as a single man, and has been stationed at Fort Slocum ever since. The wife traced him there and tried to get him discharged, but without

On Saturday night he came home unexpectedly and after a wordy quarrel left the house. Just as his wife was preparthe house. Just as his wife was preparing to go to bed he suddenly rushed into her room with a butcher knife in his hand. He made a lunge for her throat, and the wife thrust her hand up, receiving a cut across the fingers. The force of the blow had been stopped, but the knife blade entered her throat, glancing off from the breast tered her throat, glancing on from the steast bone.

Mrs. Brunner screamed and before her husband could strike her a second time the dog came tearing into the room and leaped upon August. He sank his teeth deep in the man's leg and dragged him to the floor. The father came running in, attracted by the noise, and before the husband could break away from the dog the old man had a policeman in the room.

The husband asked Magistrate Moss for another chance and promised to behave better.

"That's what they all say," replied the Magistrate. "What you want is another chance to kill your wife and not to reform. But you won't get it from me."

Brunner was placed under $1,000 bail for trial.

Romance Begun in the Steerage Ends in a Wedding on Arrival—Hebrews Complain of a Boatswain—Franke Is Back Praising American Orchestras.

The Hamburg-American liner Bluecher, from Hamburg, was detained longer than usual at Quarantine yesterday while Dr. Doty and his assistants made a careful examination of every one of her 990 steerage passengers, most of whom are Russian Jews. Only two persons, children, were found ill, and they had chicken pox and measles, which are not quarantinable. When the Bluecher sailed from Hamburg the existence of cholera there was not known to the Hamburg-American officials. Marie Hanvek, 19 years old, and Florian

Ungart, 23 years old, steerage passengers, who had never seen each other before embarking at Hamburg, struck up an acquaintance on the first day out and found that they were from the same town in Austria. They compared notes and found also that they were both bound for Milwaukee. Florian suggested as the ship was coming up the bay that it might be as well for them to go West together as man and wife, and Marie fell in with the idea.

At Ellis Island Florian asked an interpreter where he could find a clergyman; and he and Marie were taken over to a missionary in State street, who made them man and wife. They then went back to the island and were transferred with other immigrants to a barge that took them to an immigrant train bound for the West.

When the cleaning up squad started to work in the steerage quarters of the Bluecher Tuesday the bostswain, who Bluecher Tuesday the bostswain, who had charge, pushed an elderly Hebrew who refused to get out of the way. Benjamin Rogers, the kosher steerage cook, whose wages are paid jointly by the Hebrew Charities and the Hamburg-American Line, protested against the bostswain's action, declaring that the Hebrew had been disturbed in his devotions. The bostswain thereupon had trouble with Rogers. The incidents were called to the attention of the cabin passengers, and a committee of Hebrews saw Capt. Reessing and asked him to investigate. Daniello's generous hospitality the police say, was the primary cause of the outbreak. James Tiparo, 32 years old, of 1215 Bergen street, started a discussion on the outcome of the peace conference. It was declared out of order by Daniello and then Tiparo began a discussion on war by slamming his host to the floor. When Daniello regained his feet, it is alleged, he plunged a knife into Tiparo's left arm.

The other guests became mixed up in the fray just to be sociable and when the police reserves got there they found the two principal combatants still struggling. to hear the case.

The protest against Judge Humphrey trying the case is based upon the fact that Judge Humphrey directed the work of the Grand Jury which returned the indictments, and that he heard testimony of witnesses in order to determine the amount of bonds. The attitude assumed by Judge Humphrey during the Grand Jury inquiry is declared to have given a legal objection to his presiding.

So far as Judge Bethea is concerned, it is said by Federal officials that the protest is unnecessary, for the fact that he helped to secure and prepared the evidence in his capacity as District Attorney precludes to secure and prepared the evidence in his capacity as District Attorney precludes him from hearing the case.
